Art Empowers and Saves Lives

To whom it may concern:

The Kama-Sahlor Group for Cultural Performing Arts offers an after-school and summer camp programs at John B. Kelly Elementary School where we have had our participants who were recipients of the Golden Ticket Award.

We believe that art saves and empowers lives especially for youth who reside in communities plagued with drugs and violence.

Since 2014, Mr. Jeff Templeton has extended his generosity to voluntarily present the opportunity of recognizing our students per each play production we present. The following students: Amesha Hill, a sixth grader of Fidler Advance Academy, Justin Booker a two time award recipient and 10th grader of Northeast High School, and Jasmine McKethan a tenth grader of Swenson High School were awarded for their outstanding performances and leadership roles they possessed during our performing arts programs.

We are honored and are extremely thankful to Mr. Templeton for his dedication to the Germantown community and for recognizing our students and making them feel appreciated.

Sincerely,

Lisa Hopkins
